

Maryland U. Again Bars Two Coeds

An echo of the "petting party" charges at Maryland university last spring, which followed the suspension of coeds for smoking cigarettes at a dance in Washington, came from Baltimore yesterday, when it became known that Miss Vivian V. Simpson, of Washington, and Miss Virginia Flanagan, of McKeesport, Pa., had been refused permission to register for their third year at the Maryland Agricultural college. Miss Simpson was one of the coeds who, last year, were called on to write apologies for their conduct.

"An open attitude of rebellion against all authority," is given as the reason for exclusion of the students by Dr. Albert F. Woods, president and executive head of the board of regents of the university.
